

Team Expectation agreement

When working in a team, problems occasionally arise. One source of problems is the differing expectations of team members. For example, one person may think that an email response should come within 2 hours, while others may think that 2 days is acceptable.

In this tutorial, your team will work on establishing team expectations. In the space below, write down the list of agreed upon guidelines that your team intends to follow. Include guidelines for the following:

- methods of communication (email, phone, messenger, text, . . .)
- communication response times (email, phone, messenger, text, . . .)
- meeting attendance (when to meet, whether all meetings are mandatory, . . .)
- running meetings (when, where, face-to-face vs. online, who takes minutes, . . .)
- meeting preparation (whether preparation is needed, what to prepare, . . .)
- version control (what to/not to commit, content of log messages, . . .)
- division of work (how to divide work, who will decide who does what, . . .)
- submitting assignments (when to submit, who will submit, who will review the submission, . . .)
- contingency planning (what if a team member drops out, what if a team member consistently misses meetings, what if a team member is academically dishonest, . . .) We suggest that in these cases, a team promptly seeks help from the instructor. It is important not to let such situations escalate.

The list above is just meant to get you started. If you had any team problems in the past, think about what went wrong, and how can expectations be set to prevent those problems?

- Method of communication: voice calls on discord
 - Communication response times: up to 1 day (24 hours)
 - Meeting attendance: meetings on a weekly basis
 - Running Meetings: Weekends, online Discord voice calls, online, we can have face-to-face meetings as well
 - Meeting preparation: preparation will be provided per meeting
 - Version control: Always make a branch before committing, write useful summary & description per commit
 - Division of work: divide the work per strength
 - Submitting assignments: Submit before deadline. Review by everyone before submitting
 - Contingency planning: Record the issue formally, contact the course instructor / TAs and wait for the instructions provided.

We accept these guidelines and intend to fulfill them (sign below)
